

Working with Passion and Purpose

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

Frontline employees to the c-suite . . . and everyone in between. We all spend eight plus hours a day working and earning an income – a third of our day, half or more of our awake hours. If you are going to spend that much time doing something, you'd better enjoy it.

Do you wake up in the morning and as soon as you walk through the door at work you are already looking at the clock? Not happy at your job? Feeling unrecognized, unappreciated and underpaid? As easy as it is to point the finger, what you do is up to you.

Maybe the work isn't what it used to be, Maybe you do have an ineffective supervisor or difficult co-workers. Have you lost that drive? Just entering the workforce or nearing retirement, having passion and purpose in what you do – on the job and off – is always within your grasp. Your potential is greater than you think.

As an employer, imagine mission success when you have a workforce where everyone enjoys what they do. Where everyone knows where and how THEY are connected – no matter where they are in the process – to the organizations mission.

WHAT YOU WILL TAKE AWAY

- ★ Principles of success
- ★ What type of employee are you
- ★ Learn the rules and play the game
- ★ Exploring workplace core competencies every employer is looking for
- ★ Habits of the highly successful employee
- ★ How mindfulness leads to personal success
- ★ C.R.E.A.T.E. a passion for what you do
- ★ Harness the power of enthusiasm

HOW YOU WILL BENEFIT

- ★ Understanding what drives you - values clarification and alignment
- ★ A deep understanding of “The Why”
- ★ Strategies for resiliency
- ★ The four prescriptions
- ★ Maintain/Regain your passion and purpose
- ★ Focus on strengths or weaknesses? Neither
- ★ Change the conversation – change your results

Presented by Leader Development Institute
Presenting the most relevant topics in business today.

Southampton, Massachusetts
1-88 VISIT LDi (1-888-474-8534) www.LDiWorld.com